

Fun Fruit Facts

In Japan it's possible to buy watermelons shaped like pyramids.

The longest unbroken apple peel was as long as an Olympic-sized pool.

Applesauce was the first food eaten in space by an American astronaut.

A woman in Florida, USA found a strawberry shaped like a grizzly bear.

Strawberries have more Vitamin C than oranges.

Northern Spy, Wealthy, and Twenty Ounce are all types of apples.

The shiniest living thing on Earth is an African fruit known as pollia condensata.

Kiwi fruits were originally called "melonettes".

Eight college football players competed against two Asian elephants in a watermelon eating contest...and lost.

Wild strawberries can be yellow.

An avocado is sometimes known as an alligator pear.

Visit <http://kids.nationalgeographic.com> for more of NatGeo's Weird But True facts.

Fun Veggie Facts

The world's heaviest onion weighed more than a man's head.

Astronauts have grown potatoes on the space shuttle.

The largest dinosaurs were vegetarians.

The juice of one type of chili pepper can burn through a latex glove.

A woman in Sweden found her wedding ring on a carrot growing in her garden 16 years after misplacing it.

420 million years ago, mushrooms grew taller than giraffes.

Visit <http://kids.nationalgeographic.com> for more of NatGeo's Weird But True facts.

Other Fun Facts

Some honeybee queens quack.

Popcorn can pop up to three feet into the air.

Perfectly preserved honey has been found in ancient Egyptian tombs.

Peanut butter can be converted into a diamond.

Honeybees can be trained to detect explosives.

Honey never spoils.

You spend about an hour of your day chewing.

You can fry an egg on a hot sidewalk when it reaches 158°F.

Baked caterpillars taste like pistachios (don't try this at home).

The largest pumpkin pie weighed 2,020 pounds.

20% of the food we eat is used to fuel the brain.

Visit <http://kids.nationalgeographic.com> for more of NatGeo's Weird But True facts.